

How to Help a Loved One with Opioid Use Issues

What are opioids?

Opioids are a family of drugs that can be dispensed for prescription uses such as pain and severe diarrhea, and if monitored and taken as prescribed can be very helpful. Opioids can be highly addictive if misused. The Opioid family includes prescription drugs such as Vicodin, Percocet, OxyContin, morphine, Fentanyl or illicit drugs such as heroin.

When opioids are used outside of their intended use a person can develop Opioid Use Disorder (also referred to as opioid abuse, opioid dependency, and addiction), a disease that affects a person's brain and behavior. Opioid Use Disorder (OUD) results in an inability to control the use of drugs leading to health problems or interfering with the ability to work, go to school, and maintain good relationships.

Signs that a person may be dependent or abusing opioids:

- Having multiple prescriptions or extra pill bottles turning up in the trash
- Shifting or dramatically changing moods
- Social withdrawal/isolation
- Sudden financial problems
- Noticeable elation/euphoria or marked sedation/drowsiness

Withdrawal symptoms can mimic flu symptoms and include:

- Headache
- Nausea and vomiting
- Diarrhea
- Sweating
- Fatigue
- Anxiety
- Inability to sleep

Overdose is possible and life threatening. Symptoms include:

- Shallow breathing or breathing difficulty
- Unconsciousness or inability to awaken
- Lips and fingers turning blue or purple

Options for care:

1. If you suspect overdose, call 9-1-1

- If the person is presenting the symptoms of overdose, call 911. You may also call 911 to request a wellness check if you are unsure of their current safety.

2. Call the South Dakota Opioid Resource Hotline 1-800-920-4343 or text 'OPIOID' to 898211
 - The Hotline is available 24 hours a day, 7 days a week and will be answered by trained crisis workers to assist in finding local resources. Texting will connect you with resources that best fit your need by answering a few questions. People may call or text for themselves or for a loved one who is struggling.
3. Schedule an assessment
 - An opioid use assessment is performed by a substance recovery professional or mental health professional. The assessment will determine the most appropriate place and form of treatment. Some options include outpatient counseling, residential or inpatient treatment.
4. Initiate a Substance Use Involuntary Commitment (IVC)
 - If a loved one is experiencing an opioid use-related crisis and is refusing treatment, it may be appropriate to file a petition for Substance Use Involuntary Commitment. They will have to meet one of the following criteria:
 - Has threatened, attempted, or inflicted physical harm on themselves or on another or is likely to inflict physical harm on another
 - Is incapacitated by the effects of alcohol or drugs
 - Is pregnant and abusing drugs
 - This process is initiated through the Clerk of Courts
